Boston, Oct. 19, 1865.

My dear McKim:

Your letters have greatly relieved my mind, and made my path clear to the West. I am still receiving overtures from that quarter, more than I shall be able to accept. I will attend a meeting at Portland with you next week, and another at Brunswick, provided the latter is not held later than Friday evening, 27th; for I must return to Boston on Saturday, and be ready to start on my western tour on the subsequent Monday. So I cannot go to Bangor; and perhaps it may not be deemed necessary to hold a meeting there. Remember that, to reach Portland in season to attend an evening meeting, it will be necessary to take the morning train from Boston that leaves at half past 7—therefore you must pass the previous night at Rockledge.

I have made my calculation to be at Pittsburgh Dec. ~~20th~~, 22, 3d and 4th. I must lecture twice there — once for the Freedmen's Commission. On the 5th, I must be off for Philadelphia and the wedding, which I understand is to come off on the 6th or 7th. This will be close work. Of course, we can hold no meeting at Harrisburg. While I am gone, I shall aim to average four lectures a week.

I presume we shall be apprised in season of the Portland meeting.

In galloping haste,

Ever truly yours,

Wm. Lloyd Garrison.

J. M. McKim.

P. S. I have made my calculations to be in Cincinnati Thursday <sup>and</sup> Friday, ~~Saturday and Sunday~~ Nov. 30 and 31. Have no lecture appointed there. Will be glad of help.
